SPIRITUAL GYMNASIUM

---

Chapter 7 of 1 Corinthians begins a section of the letter in which Paul answers several practical questions about which the believers in Corinth had written him about. The first set of questions has to do with marriage. As with many other problems within the church of Corinth, much of the marital trouble they were having was a reflection of society in which they lived in, were saved out of, but yet had not fully separated from. Read 1 Corinthians 7:1-11, and identify Paul's answers to the following two questions: Is celibacy (remaining unmarried) more spiritual than marriage? Should those who were married and divorced before becoming a Christian remarry?
